

Kroger suspends supply of milk from farm accused of animal abuse

PUBLISHED: JUL 26TH, 2019 - 12:50AM (EDT) UPDATED: JUL 26TH, 2019 - 12:53AM (EDT)

Kroger store in Indianapolis. (Source; Shutterstock/Jonathan Weiss)

The fallout continues for the organic dairy farm Natural Prairie, days after a video was released by an animal rights group called the Animal Recovery Mission showing alleged abuse.

Kroger replied to a tweet about Natural Prairie Creek milk that linked to the video, saying the store has "shared concerns with Natural Prairie Dairy Farms and have suspended the supply of raw milk from the farm for use in our products."

 Kroger @kroger · Jul 21, 2019
Why is our Unicorn Swirl so popular on #NationalIceCreamDay? Maybe it's the magical unicorn dust we sprinkle in every container. But it's probably just all the amazing flavors. spr.ly/6016ExDpm

 VegAvengers
@VegAvenger

Hope it's not made from your Natural Prairie Creek milk @kroger
@KrogerNews vimeo.com/349554589

 Vimeo @Vimeo

 1 4:38 PM - Jul 23, 2019

 See VegAvengers's other Tweets

At last check, Natural Prairie has yet to comment on the abuse allegations.